

MOVING IN CIRCLE IS TIMES DOLLAR

Lady and Eagle Have Dispute in Their Journey.

ALL MATTER OF JEALOUSY

Took a Fly at Baseball Game, Helped Man Get a Shave, Then Drowned Trouble in Bowl of Bacchus.

The lady and the eagle decorating the sides of The Times dollar are about to have a falling out. Ever since they went to the baseball game the other day things have not been as serene as might have been expected, and yesterday the climax came when the dollar floated into the box office of the National Theater. The lady is suspected of casting sheep's eyes at a young man employed at the theater. Today, as if to drown his chagrin, the eagle forced the lady to trail along behind him to the wine store of James Tharp, in F street, and there the big bird lies content within the fragrant confines of Mr. Tharp's attractive store.

It all happened at the baseball game. W. L. Fitch went out to see the game and paid over the dollar to Mr. Fowler. The lady said afterward that she didn't like the game, but nobody thought her attention was so diverted from the diamond that for a whole day she refused to be parted from Mr. Fowler. Finally the eagle got mad and when Mr. Fowler was least expecting it the dollar humped itself out of his pocket and across the counter in Frenchy's, the National Theater Buffet. J. P. Jackson, a clerk in the Treasury Department, next found the dollar snugly tucked away in his pocket, but lost no time in spending it in the Reelz barbershop, where the lady and the eagle helped him out in getting a good, clean shave.

Murray Wolf wandered into the barbershop with manifestly the same purpose in mind which had brought Mr. Jackson, and when he received his change he counted among his treasures the fair lady and the big eagle.

Mr. Wolf was walking down Pennsylvania avenue and the first thing he knew he was being drawn over toward the National Theater by an unseen and most indefinable force. It was the lady and she had her eye on that box office. What was her surprise when Mr. Wolf handed her over in payment for a ticket to find herself snugly cared for in the hands of Clarence Jacobson, Mr. Fowler's assistant in the box office. The lady whispered to herself "Foiled again," for Mr. Fowler was nowhere to be seen. Womanlike, she wondered if he had known she was coming and just "lit out." The eagle called her slinky, for one thing, and foolish, for another, to pin her faith to one man and then the row occurred which culminated in the hasty trip down to Mr. Tharp's.

SOUTH DAKOTA MACHINE UPSET BY GAMBLE FACTION

New Party Alignment the Result of Tuesday's Primaries.

Political revolution was wrought in South Dakota yesterday—revolution that involves two seats in the Senate and two members of the House, that being all the State possesses.

Senator Robert J. Gamble is leader of the so-called "insurgent" faction of the Republican party that on Tuesday, by winning a great fight in the primaries, made itself the "regular" organization. The primaries were for selection of delegates to the county conventions which, in every county, will on Tuesday next select delegates to the State convention to be held in Sioux Falls June 5. At that time Senator Gamble will be endorsed for election to succeed himself, two new men will be nominated to succeed Congressmen Eben W. Martin and Charles H. Burke. C. J. Crawford, of Huron, will be nominated by the Gamble-Crawford faction for governor to succeed Gov. S. H. Elrod, who has served but a single term, and a complete State ticket will be dictated by the Gamble faction.

The South Dakota fight has been in progress about a year. Senator Kittredge was the real general of the organization. Since 1896, when he became national committeeman for the State he has been the State boss. His backing has consisted of the railroads, the Federal officeholders, and the State organization. Until about a year ago Senator Gamble was associated with the Kittredge organization. Then Congressman Martin began considering a senatorial candidacy on his own account. Kittredge sided with him, and Congressman Burke cast in his fortunes with these two. It left Gamble fighting single-handed against his three associates.

The issue of railroad domination was promptly raised. The split in the delegation first became notorious when it tied up Federal patronage. The appointment of Seth Bullock, personal friend of the President, to be United States marshal in the State, was one of the first appointments on which trouble arose. The President wanted, for personal reasons to name Bullock, and he insisted it was a foot race between the two factions to see which should first get its endorsement of Bullock on file.

Both sides claimed the victory by a hair's breadth, and each claimed that in consideration of this favor to the President it ought to have the benefit of his moral support. Whatever may have been the merits, Bullock became a supporter of the Kittredge-Martin-Burke organization.

At the time of announcing his candidacy for the Senate, Mr. Martin pledged himself, in case he should be defeated from his seat in the House, to retire from his seat in the House. The insurgents brought out candidates in Congress against Martin and Burke, and these will get the places.

Mr. Crawford, who started the insurgency in the State and will be named for governor, is ambitious for a seat in the Senate, and will without doubt, if nominated and elected now, be a candidate for the seat now occupied by Mr. Kittredge at the end of the latter's term, three years hence.

The failure of Senator Kittredge to carry his home county of Minnehaha was the sensation of the contest. Sioux Falls is the largest city in the State and the county seat of Minnehaha. In the last days of the fight a determined effort was made by the regulars to save it. The insurgents carried the city of Sioux Falls by three votes, while the insurgents carried the outside precincts of the county by a big majority.

OIL PORTRAIT OF LEE TO BE GIVEN VETERANS

At Confederate Veterans' Hall, 1410 H street northwest, an interesting event will occur this evening in the presentation of a portrait in oil of the late Gen. Fitzhugh Lee. The portrait is the work of Miss Angela, of this city, whose father was a dashing rider under the distinguished cavalry leader in the days of the civil war.

The presentation speech will be made by the Hon. J. E. Rixey, of Virginia, and response on behalf of the fair artist and the camp by J. McDowell Carrington, vice president of the association. A most enjoyable occasion is contemplated to which the public is cordially invited.

CHARITY CONCERTS WELL PATRONIZED

Three Enjoyable Musical Entertainments Artistic and Financial Success.

Last night was a banner night for charity entertainments, as three successful charity concerts were given. One was in the Eighth Street Temple, another was under the auspices of the Vaughn Class and was given by the Morrell Vocal Club in Calvary Baptist Sunday school room, and another was under the patronage of the Woman's Exchange. The first two were in aid of the California sufferers.

The concert in the Eighth Street Temple was notable for its artistic character. The Marine Band Orchestra, several of the regular synagogue singers, and other well known musicians participated in the program. Dr. George Walter, organist of the synagogue, gave several selections and Mrs. Shircliffe and Mr. McFarland, soprano and tenor soloists of the quartet, offered solos. Fritz Mueller, cellist, and Anton Kaspar were two of the notable artists on the program.

Much interest centered in the performance of Ralph Goldsmith, the eleven-year-old violinist. This young player gave a series of difficult compositions in notable style and his work was highly appreciated. He has much more maturity than one would expect to find in a player of his years, and he promises much of artistic value to the musical world of the future. Dr. Bishop and Arthur D. Mayo were the accompanists.

The Morrell Club and Vaughn Class managed to bring together a large and most appreciative audience in Calvary Sunday School. The program consisted of choruses and solo numbers.

Equal success attended the entertainment in aid of the Woman's Exchange. A variety of features were offered and a neat sum was realized.

THE FREEZING ANSWER.

"Would you mind walking the other way and not passing the horse?" said a cabman with exaggerated politeness to the fat lady who had just paid the minimum fare. "Why," she inquired. "Because if 'e sees wot 'e's been carrying for a shilling 'ell 'ave a fit," was the freezing reply.—London Globe.
